PROMOTING HEALTH AND SAFETY IN LONDON

Introducing the London Health and Safety Group - promoting health and safety in London

Established over 50 years ago and previously known as the London Occupational Health, Safety and Hygiene Group, we're actively concerned with all aspects of occupational health, safety and accident prevention.

Our members represent organisations both large and small, throughout London and the Home Counties. A lively Executive Committee, elected by the members, guides the group throughout the year and ensures that their needs are fully catered for.

How can we help you?

By joining the group, you can benefit from the expertise of our members. Many of the health and safety challenges that you face may already have been experienced by our members and you can benefit from their experience. No matter whether your organisation is large or small, by attending our meetings, we can offer you the help and support you need.

Activities

Each season, the group hosts a series of topical presentations and our programme for 2006/2007 appears to the right. Expert speakers talk on a wide range of relevant subjects covering all aspects of occupational safety and health. We are often joined by representatives of the Health and Safety Executive, who pass on up-to-date information and guidance.

Each year, we also arrange an annual visit to an interesting location, to broaden our knowledge of health and safety practical issues.
